For biting the nose of William F. Smith, a conductor on the Washington Virginia railway, which occurred at 10 | nothing can puff any one up like foolo'clock last night, Charles Butler, colored, claiming Washington as his home. tenced to serve six months in jail and pay a fine of $50.

The biting took place on a train for Washington last night and caused considerable excitement among the passengers. Butler was taken in custody by Policeman B. T. Young, and Smith had to have four stitches taken in his nose by Dr. M. D. Delaney.

Conductor Smith testified that a party of six colored people, men and women, boarded the car, and Butler was with a woman. They took seats in the section reserved for white people. Smith explained the provisions of the "Jim Crow" law, and Butler, after the woman moved, also moved to the rear, and the motion of the car caused him to lurch and threw him to the floor. He immediately got up and bit the conductor's nose, according to Smith.

Frank Waldvogel, an employe at the Armour icing station, Alexandria county, was struck by a northbound freight train shortly after 7 o'clock this morning while near the union passenger railway station. Waldvogel had his right leg so badly mangled that it was amputated below the knee at the Alexandria hospital. The operation was performed by Dr. M. D. Delaney. His condition is regarded as satisfactory.
